The Man Who Led America into World War I

Woodrow Wilson was the 28th President of the United States. He was a Democrat who served from 1913 to 1921. Wilson is best known for his role in leading the United States into World War I and for his Fourteen Points, which outlined his vision for a peaceful world after the war.

Wilson's Fourteen Points

In January 1918, Wilson delivered a speech to Congress in which he outlined his Fourteen Points. These points were a set of principles that Wilson believed should guide the peace settlement after World War I. The Fourteen Points included:

- Open covenants of peace, openly arrived at
- Absolute freedom of navigation upon the seas, outside territorial waters, alike in peace and in war
- The removal, so far as possible, of all economic barriers and the establishment of an equality of trade conditions among all the nations consenting to the peace and associating themselves for its maintenance
- Adequate guarantees given and taken that national armaments will be reduced to the lowest point consistent with domestic safety
- A free, open-minded, and absolutely impartial adjustment of all colonial claims, based upon a strict observance of the principle that in determining all such questions of sovereignty the interests of the populations concerned must have equal weight with the equitable claims of the government whose title is to be determined
- The evacuation of all Russian territory and such a settlement of all questions affecting Russia as will secure the best and freest cooperation of the other nations of the world in obtaining for her an unhampered and unembarrassed opportunity for the independent determination of her own political development and national policy and assure her of a sincere welcome into the society of free nations under institutions of her own choosing; and, more than a welcome, assistance also of every kind that she may need and may herself desire

- Belgium, the whole world will agree, must be evacuated and restored, without any attempt to limit the sovereignty which she enjoys in common with all other free nations
- All French territory should be freed and the invaded portions restored, and the wrong done to France by Prussia in 1871 in the matter of Alsace-Lorraine, which has unsettled the peace of the world for nearly fifty years, should be righted, in Free Download that peace may once more be made secure in the interest of all
- A readjustment of the frontiers of Italy should be effected along clearly recognizable lines of nationality
- The peoples of Austria-Hungary, whose place among the nations we wish to see safeguarded and assured, should be accorded the freest opportunity of autonomous development
- Roumania, Serbia, and Montenegro should be evacuated; occupied territories restored; Serbia accorded free and secure access to the sea; and the relations of the several Balkan states to one another determined by friendly counsel along historically established lines of allegiance and nationality

- The Turkish portions of the present Ottoman Empire should be assured a secure sovereignty, but the other nationalities which are now under Turkish rule should be assured an undoubted security of life and an absolutely unmolested opportunity of autonomous development, and the Dardanelles should be permanently opened as a free passage to the ships and commerce of all nations under international guarantees
- An independent Polish state should be erected which should include the territories inhabited by indisputably Polish populations, which should be assured a free and secure access to the sea, and whose political and economic independence and territorial integrity should be guaranteed by international covenant
- A general association of nations must be formed under specific covenants for the purpose of affording mutual guarantees of political independence and territorial integrity to great and small states alike

The Impact of Wilson's Fourteen Points

Wilson's Fourteen Points had a significant impact on the peace settlement after World War I. They helped to shape the League of Nations, which was created to prevent future wars. The Fourteen Points also influenced the creation of the Treaty of Versailles, which ended the war. In addition, the Fourteen Points helped to inspire the creation of the United Nations after World War II.

Woodrow Wilson was a visionary leader who played a major role in shaping the course of World War I and the world's future. His Fourteen Points were a bold and ambitious plan for a peaceful world. Although some of the Fourteen Points were not achieved, they remain a powerful reminder of the importance of striving for peace.
